The Lyre and Sword.

BY J. G. WHITTIER.

The freeman's glittering sword be blest,
Forever blest the freeman's lyre—
That rings upon the tyrant's crest,
That stirs the heart-like living fire:
Well can he wield the shining brand
Who battles for his native land,
But when his fingers sweep the cords
That summon heroes to the fray,
They gather at the feast of swords,
Like mountain eagles to their prey!

And 'mid the vales and swelling hills,
That sweetly bloom on Freedom's land,
A living spirit breathes and fills
The Freeman's heart, and nerves his hand.
For the bright soil that gave him birth.
The home of all he loves on earth—
For this, when Freedom's t umpet calls,
He waves on high his sword of fire—
For this amid his country's halls,
Forever strikes the Freeman's lyre.

His burning heart he may not lend
To serve a doating despot's sway—
A suppliant knee he will not bend
Before those things of 'brass and clay;'
When wrong and ruin call to war,
He knows the summons from afar;
On high his glittering sword he waves,
And myriads feel that freeman's fire.
While he around their father's graves
Strikes to old strains the Freeman's lyre.

A Select Tale.

The Three Trials.

A LEGEND OF THE BLACK FOREST

BY MRS. SKELTON.

It was late in the evening when the Bishop of Salzburg entering the hall of his palace, where his knights and men-at-arms sat carousing round a board laden with goodly viands and flagons of sparkling wine. His countenance was troubled and in his hand he held an open letter.

'Is there one among you, my valiant knights and men-at-arms, who will mount and ride to night, and do my bidding at the camp of my good brother, the Catholic Duke?'

There was silence for a brief space.—Then many spoke—'The way is through the Black Forest, and this is an eve on which the demons have double power.'

'I know it my children, but it is a holy errand, and I will give my blessings ere departure, and a rich reward on return to whomsoever will dare to go.'

Then out spake a young and handsome knight, the gallant Hubert von Alstein.—'I will go, your grace; and with your blessing, and my own good sword, will fear nor man nor fiend.'

'Well said, my son, thou wast ever a brave youth. Follow me to my chamber, and thou shalt have full instructions.' And the Bishop left the hall.

Now when the young knight made the offer, many others had come forward, and expressed their wishes to try the adventure but Hubert had first spoken and was therefore chosen; nor would he accept of a partner or compenion in the dangerous enterprise.

So he ascended to the Bishop's chamber to receive his full instructions. And the Bishop said—'Here is a sealed packet; deliver it with thine own hand, to our noble brother, the Catholic Duke, and bring me back a reply ere noon to-morrow. Here is also a relict, a fragment of the true cross, brought from the Holy Land, attached to a golden chain seven times forged, and blessed by his Holiness the Pope. Bind it round thy neck and hold it to thy bosom Now take my blessing and with these and thine own good sword, thou mayest pass unscathed through the fires of Tophet.'

The young knight bent the knee, and received with reverence the benediction of the Bishop.

Then Hubert's trusty steed was brought forth and he mounted him; yet ere he rode from the court-yard, he strayed beneath a low window, barely five feet from the ground, where a light glimmered through closing lattices and encroaching vine leaves. He struck lightly on the casement; it quickly opened, and a fair face and neck appeared from the narrow aperture.

'Ah! Hubert,' said the maiden, 'whither so late, and on so wild a night.'

'My errand is wilder than the night fairest, I go to the camp of the Duke, with letters from his grace, your right reverend uncle.'

'The saints protect us! Hubert, you will not surely tempt the dangers of the Black Forest to-night?'

'Nay, Lilla, I must go; and will claim a rich reward should I return—and return I shall, for I have been blessed by the Bishop, and carry with me a precious relic—a fragment of the true cross. But this is lingering—I should be on the road;—one kiss, Lilla, and pray for me till I come again,'

So Lilla gave him one kiss, and many beside; and with tears and entreaties that he would run no heedless dangers, she saw him depart.

Hubert rode cheerily on as long as he continued in the open country, but it needed all his courage to keep up his spirits as he plunged into the gloomy forest. However, it was too late to retreat, so he said an Ave, pressed the relic to his bosom, and urged his horse into a gallop.

The road grew gloomier and more intricate as he proceeded along it, and he had accomplished about a mile, when the trampling of a steed behind him caused him to look back, and he beheld a knight close behind him, mounted on an ebon colored charger, and clad in black armor, having on his helmet a large carbuncle which diffused a mysterious glimmer around.

'Good even,' said the stranger; 'we have a rough ride before us;—whither are you bound?'

'To the camp of the Duke, with despatches,' replied Hubert.

'Strange!' ejaculated the black knight—'we ride on the same errand. I too, bear despatches to the Duke, and from a holy prelate, the Bishop of Salzburg.'

'Do you not fear the demons who throng these woods?' inquired Hubert.

'I have a sure protection,' replied the black knight, 'the Bishop blessed me, and gave me a fragment of the true cross.'

'Another strange coincidence!' exclaimed Hubert—'I too have a similar relic, and am armed with a like benediction.'

The black knight laughed, and his laugh was echoed by a thousand mocking noises while forms, indistinct and ghastly flitted between the trees, and crossed their path.'

'Holy Virgin, save us!—exclaimed Hubert, crossing himself.

'Cease this mummery,' said the strange knight; 'are you a priest that you can do nought but pray?—If you fear the phantoms, kiss you relic, and all will be well,'

I do not fear them,' answered Hubert stoutly; but he nevertheless drew the relic from his bosom, and pressed it devoutly to his lips.

'Let me see this precious fragment, and I will show you mine,' said the black knight. And they compared the two by the light of the carbuncle, and found them precisely alike.

'I have a strange fancy that we should exchange relics as a token of brotherhood,' pursued the black knight. 'Will you consent?'

'Nay, good knight,' said Hubert, 'I may not part with so precious a gift, even tho' yours may be equal to it it in sanctity. Let each one retain his own.'

'Now I look again, mine is larger than yours, and has a nail within it which yours has not; therefore I should lose by the exchange' said the black knight, sarcastically. 'Disengage the chain from your neck that we may compare them more closely.'

'Nay, I part with it not, even for one moment. If you can see it thus as I hold it forth, well and good—but it leaves me not.'

The black knight stooped to look at the relic, at the some time tendering his own to Hubert's inspection; then, as Hubert also leaned forward, he made a hasty snatch at the chain, and almost succeeded in breaking it; but the links, seven times forged, and blessed by the Pope, proved true to their trust, as Hubert's strong hand to its hold of the Treasure. The black knight was forced with a deep execration to release his prey, while Hubert exclaimed;—'Avaunt, foul fiend! in the name of all the saints!' As these words were spoken the black knight dashed his spurs into his horse, from whose nostrils issued volumes of flame and smoke, and plunged into the thick cover of the forest, while all around rang with shrieks of wild, unearthly laughter.

Hubert started around Lim with astonishment; then kissing his talisman, he replaced it in his bosom, felt that the Bishop's letters were safe, and resumed his route.

The forest was once more tranquil; the moon shone out; the red light which had occasionally gleamed in the direction of the sound, amid the trees died away;—the cries and shrieks were lost in the distance.

He had ridden perchance another mile, when a voice plaining in distress, broke upon his ears. So piteous were the tones that he instantly dismounted; and leading his horse, forced his way through the thicket. He had not proceeded far before he came to an open space, where, bound to a tree, he descried a venerable looking old man, whose robes of purple and ermine proclaimed him an ecclesiastic of the highest order; near him was a mule, also tied to a tree, and a dead body, apparently that of a man-at-arms, lying with his face downward.

'Oh! my son!—help, and pity! cried the old man.

'Holy father, whence this plight?—how can I assist you?' cried Hubert unbinding him.

'My son, I am the Archbishop of Cologne, and have been grievously beaten and wounded by the robbers or evil beings, I know not which. Journeying through this forest to visit the Bishop of Salzburg, with four retainers and two sumpter mules, I was attacked as I have described, and should have perished but for your assistance. The body on the ground before you is one of my followers;—the others fled, the robbers took my sumpter mules and all my wealth. Their miscreant leader even carried off a piece of the true cross, which I valued more than all the rest, and which I was about to compare with a similar fragment possessed by my brother, the Bishop of Salzburg.'

'That accounts for the relic in the posse sion of the fiend,' thought Hubert.—'Mount your mule, holy father, and ride with me to the camp of the great Duke, where you will find protection;—and on the morrow, an escort to the Bishop.'

'I thank you, my son;—but first let me pray and thank the saints for my deliverance. So good a knigt as you must have a crucifix about you.'

'I have no crucifix,' replied Hubert;—'but I have the very fragmrnt of the true cross, alluded to by your grace, which has been confided to me by the Bishop of Salzburg.'

'That were better than all,' cried the Archbishop. 'Lend it to me, my son, that I may profit by its virtue.'

'Here is the relic, most holy Archbishop, repied Hubert, 'but I may not part with it. I will hold it here in my hand while you pray.'

Scarcely had the Archbishop put his knee to the ground, when, seeing Hubert's attention for the moment distracted, he sprang up, and seizing the relic, attempted to take possession of it; but again Hubert's good fortune prevailed, and enabled him to overthrow the deceiver, who uttered a piercing shriek, which was answered by the same yells and cries as had before been heard, fell to the ground, and changed instantly into a corpse. his robes becoming the loathsome habiliments of the grave, his goodly person, benign countenance, and venerable whites, a mass of corruption. Hubert started in horror;—then turned to the body of the pretended retainer, and saw it had also become a skeleton, while the mule, which had been fastened to a tree, had vanished.

Congratulating himself on his second escape, Hubert again kissed the relic, and having regained the path, proceeded on his journey.

He met with no farther adventure, until he had well nigh gained the outskirts of the forest, when he heard fearful shrieks behind him, and his name called forth in well-known accents. Turning, he saw his beloved Lilla flying wildly after him, her hair unbound, her robes loose and disordered, pursued by a whole host of evil spirits.

'Oh, Hubert! save me—save me!' she shrieked.

'Lilla, dearest! what do you here?'—cried Hubert, catching her round the waist and seating her before him on his steed.—'Do not tremble, Lilla, you are safe now. But in the name of wonder, how came you here?'

'I know not,' she cried faintly. 'I was dragged from my chamber by demons.—Put spur on your steed or we shall be taken.'

'Fear not,' replied Hubert. 'Cling closely and we shall be safe. The demons are already giving up the chase. They fear the relic—ha! ha!'

Lilla twined her arms around his neck, and laid her head on his bosom; but every moment she started and shrank as if in pain, and moaned feebly. When he anquired the cause of her uneasiness, she again crept close to him and appeared for a time composed. Suddenly she raised her head and said—'You are wounded, Hubert, I know it; let me open your vest and staunch your wound. You bleed, Hubert—you bleed.'

Hubert laughed. 'Not so dearest,' he said; 'I have received no wound.'

But Lilla persisted; she succeeded in opening his vest all the while caressing him into forgetfulness of his duty, till, in an unguarded moment, she grasped the relic and at the same time attempted to slide from his horse. But Hubert again conquered. Drawing his dagger, without heeding her prayers and wiles, he severed her hand at her wrist and flung her from the saddle. She fell to the earth, and glided across the road in the likeness of a beautiful serpent, painted with a thousand colors, and having a crest of gold;—and leaving as she disappeared among the underwood, a shining track of mingled flame and blood. The severed hand fell from the rescued relic and took the form of a fiendish claw.

This was the last essay of the demons Hubert arrived safely at the camp of the great Duke, and ere the following noon was again in the presence of the Bishop of Salzburg.

'Well hast thou done, young knight;—and many thanks do I owe thee,' cried the Bishop. 'Thou hast saved me many a rood of goodly land, and many a broad golden crown. Thou hast borne many trials and perils, but thou hast won a rich reward. What dost thou ask? A place among the Emperor's guards? or a fort on the frontiers under thine own command? or a rich estate, with gold to furnish thy castle?'

'Oh, mighty Bishop!' replied Hubert, prostrating himself before the prelate;—'there is a treasure greater than all these, that I would fain possess. It is the Lady Lilla—thy fair niece—for a bride.'

The the Bishop's brow grew dark;—but Lilla stepped forward and knelt beside her lover; and they were so lovely—so noble a pair, that he could not say them nay. So he joined their hands and gave the bride a noble dowry. And she and Hubert lived a life of unclouded happiness and love, and left behind them many princely sons and gentle daughters to inherit their mother's beauty and their father's fame.

Humorous.

Talking French.

The following humorous examination of some British tars taken prisoners by the French is from "Leaves of My Log Book."

"Comment vous appellez-vous?" inquired the French officer, addressing a thorough old tar of the Smollet school; "comment vous appellez-vous?"

"Ax the marine there," replied the veteran; "I no parley ferstand, but the Jollies all speak Dutch."

"Non, non, mon ami," returned the Frenchman—"I no mean dusch—I no mean de cen ree—your appellez—Saacre! Comment vous nomez-vous?"

"Nummy woo! who the ——— do you call nummy woo?" exclaimed the seaman angrily, and taking a severe turn with his quid—"I wants no purser's amunitions consarns to pass muster. My name's Zachariah Winchbolt."

"Jacka—Jack-Quoi?" inquired the officer; "Mon Dieu! le diable catch your nom Jacka-Quoi! Dit es done!"

"Jacka Quaw? you be d——d," replied the old tar. "I wish my old mother could hear you call me so, and me to be named after a commander-in-chief at Jerusalem.—Jacky Quaw, indeed! d——n my eyes but she'd quaw you, old chap—my name's Zachariah."

"Zhack-a rire—c'est bon," said the officer, laughing heartily, in which he was joined by his attendants—"Votre nom me fait rire en verite. Zhackarire—c'est drole! mais de oder nom, mon ami?"

"The other name, mounseer?" reiterated the tar, "why it's Winchbolt, at your service."

"Eh bien, mon ami," returned th Frenchman, "Vinachebout." Then addressing his secretary or clerk—"Depechevous—mettez—Rhaccarire Vinchabout," Then turning to the seaman he continued, "Quel est le lieu de votre naissance?"

"I'm blessed if that arnt a cut above my education," exclaimed Winchbolt. "I say Jem, can't you unlay the strands of it for me, and twist it up again into twice laid."

"Why, in the regard o' the matter o' that," replied the man addressed (an old boatswain's mate,) "it's a long while since I learned the languages, but howsomever I'll try my hand at it—Quois vous havey beswoin, mountsier?"

"Le lieu de sa naissance," answered the Frenchman.

"He wants the loo of your nazeaux, Zach," said the boatswain's mate, "which, as he seems to be logging down your marks and fashion pieces, I takes him to mean the length of your nose."

An Affecting Sight.

There are some odd souls in this world, who appear to derive their very existenee from a humorous saying or a good joke; and who undoubtedly would "swell up and die," if they were not permitted to indulge their waggish propensity. Ben Chatterbox, as he is called, is one of these laughter loving, joke cracking mortals. We quote a specimen.

Somewhere east of the Susquehanna, in this county, there is a barren, lonely spot, where no one would suspect that any thing but quadrupeds as can "live on the vapors of a dungeon," would ever think of seeking an existence. Ben's occupation often leads him through this abode of sterility; and he, as often, has some waggish remark concerning it. After passing this place one day, Ben went home, from some cause unknown, with a countenance as grave as that of a judge, and a 'bridle on his tongue' This being 'something new under the sun,' led to the following dialogue between him and an old lady belonging to the house—

"What's the matter of you, Ben?—Are you sick, or mad, that makes you look so solemn all at once?"

"O, if you had seen what I did, this morning, I guess you'd look solemn too!"

"What have you seen, Ben?"

"A heart rending sight, I assure you."

"Well, what was it?—I know it must be something remarkable, or it would not affect you so—out with it, do."

"You know that place I've told you about; that nothing can live on?"

"Yes."

"Well, as I was coming by there to-day, I saw a chipmuck sitting on a rock, gnawing a gravel stone, and the tears rolling down his cheeks—"

When he had got thus far with his story the old woman flew at him with the broom and our hero vanished in a roar of laughter.—[Bradford Argus.

Dry Eating.

Adopting Miller's mode of calculating Biblical time, says an eastern paper, Nebuchadnezzar, who was condemned to feed with the beasts of the earth, would have been subject to punishment 4000 years, which would end about the year 1950; and thus poor Nebuchadnezzar would be found eating grass one hundred and seven years after the destruction of the world!

DANDY.

A dandy, who recently eloped with an heiress, in the hurry of such affairs, took his bride before the priest in a riding-coat. Before proceeding with his brief ceremony, the wag, looking attentively at the parties, said, "But to prevent any mistake hereafter, tell me, without prevarication, if ye are both women in disguise, or if not which is the male."

Coming to the point.—"Frank," said a young lady to a diffident suitor, who had for some time been making evening calls upon her, without fully declaring himself—"Frank, if you wish to marry me, I wish to know it—so that I may make preparation."

A long pause ensued—at length Frank broke silence and exclaimed, "No meat, no corn, and fishing almost over! Good Lord!—Well, I can't!" Frank's answer was at least a frank one.

"My love," said an amiable spouse to her husband, "don't sell that horse—I want to keep him."

"He's my horse, and I'll sell him," replied the loving lord. "Didn't I buy him?"

"It was my money bought him," retorted the aristocratic lady.

"Yes, madam," said the husband, "and by Jupiter your money bought me, or you never would have got me!"

People who are resolved to please always at all events, frequently overshoot the mark and render themselves ridiculous by being too good. A lady going to eat plumb cake and candy at a friend's house one morning, ran to the cradle to see the fine boy, as soon as she came in. Unfortunately the cat had taken the baby's place; but before she could see her mistake, and with uplifted eyes and hands, "Oh! what a sweet child—the very picture of his father."

We find the following caution in an exchange paper. It is worth attending to:—

Caution—Persons who are troubled with affection of the chest, cannot be too careful during the changeable weathers of March and April. Many a cold has been caught during these months; which, unattended to has resulted in consumption and death. The feeble and delicate should change their clothing with the changing weather. Young females are especially apt to be too careless at this season of the year.

How sweet are the affections of social kindness! how balmy the influence of that regard which dwells around our firesides!—Distrust and doubt darken not the brightness of its purity: the cravings of interest and jealousy mar not the harmony of that scene. Parental kindness and filial affection blossom there, in all the freshness of an eternal spring. It matters not if the world is cold, if we can but turn to our dear circle, and ask and receive all that our own heart claims.

The Great Man.

The greatest man is he who choses the right with invincible resolution; who resists the sorest temptation from within & without who is calmest in storms, and most fearless under menaces and frowns; whose reliance on truth, on virtue on God, is most unfaltering.—[Channing.

Life.

Life is a voyage, in the progress of which we are perpetually changing our scenes; we first leave childhood behind us, then youth, then the year of ripened manhood, then the better and more pleasing part of old age.—[Seneca.

Origin of the names of the several United States.

Maine was so called as early as 1633, from Maine, in France, of which Henrietta Maria, Queen of England, was at that time proprietor.

New-Hampshire was the name given to the territory conveyed by the Plymouth Company to Capt John Mason, by patent, Nov. 7, 1629, with reference to the patentee, who was governor of Portsmouth, in Hampshire, England.

Vermont was so called by the inhabitants in their declaration of independence January 16. 1777, from the French verd mont, green mountain.

Massachusetts was so called from Massachusetts Bay, and that from the Massachusetts tribe of Indians in the neighborhood of Boston. The tribe is thought to have derived its name from the Blue Hills of Milton. "I had learned," says Roger Williams, "that Massachusetts was so called from the Blue Hills."

Rhode Island was so called in 1644, in reference to the Island of Rhodes, in the Mediterranean.

Connecticut was so called from the Indian name of its principal river. Connecticut is a Moheakanneew word signifying long river.

New-York was so called in 1664, in reference to the Duke of York and Albany, to whom this territory was granted by the King of England.

New-Jersey was so called in 1964, from the Island of Jersey, on the coast of France the residence of the family of Sir George Carteret, to whom this territory was granted.

Pennsylvania was so called in 1681, after Wm. Penn.

Delaware was so called in 1703 from the Delaware Bay, on which it lies, and which received its name from Lord de la War, who died in this bay.

Maryland was so called in honor of Henrietta Maria, Queen of Charles I., in his patent to Lord Baltimore, June 30, 1632.

Virginia was so called in 1584, after Elizabeth, the virgin Queen of England.

Carolina was so called by the French in 1564 in honor of King Charles IX. of France.

Georgia was so called in 1632, in honor of King George II.

Alabama was so called in 1817, from its principal river.

Mississippi was so called in 1800, from its western boundary. Mississippi is said to denote the whole river, i. e., the river formed by many.

Louisiana was so called in honor of Lous XIV. of France.

Tennessee was so called from its principal river. The world Ten-asse is said to signify a curved spoon.

Kentucky was so called in 1792, from its principal river.

Illinois was so called in 1809 from its principal river. The word is said to signify the river of men.

Indiana was so called in 1809 from the American Indians.

Ohio was so called in 1802 from its southern boundary.

Missouri was so called in 1821 from its principal river.

Michigan was so called in 1805 from the lake on its border.

Arkansas was so called in 1819 from its principal river.

Florida was so called by Juan Ponce de Leon, in 1572. Robertson says they called it Florida on account of its flowers.

Columbia was so called in reference to Columbus.

Wisconsin was so called from its principal river.

Iowa is so called from its principal river.

Oregon is so called from its principal river.

Extraordinary Discovery.

At the conclusion of the lecture at the Aolytechnic Hill, Falmouth, Mr. Robert Hunt, the secretary, announced the discovery, by himself, of a metallic plate which would receive by mere contact impressions of any printed page, an engraving, or the like. This discovery was arrived at by following out the recent discoveries of Moeser, that the bodies were constantly making impressions upon each other in absolute darkness by the agency, as he considered, of latent light, but which Mr. Hunt thinks he has certain proofs of being latent heat. The impression received on the metal is at first invisible, but is readily brought out by the means of any vapour. Mr. Hunt exhibited some specimens of wood and copperplate engravings, copied from the paper into the metal. These copies exhibited every line of the original and were far more distinct than any of the early daguerreotypes. Mr. Hunt proposes to call this new art thermography.—[West Briton.

Falsehood flies swift as the wind, and truth creeps behind her at a snail's pace. But falsehood makes so many twistings and turnings, that truth, keeping steadily on, looking neither to the right nor the left, overtakes her before long.

LEWISTOWN REPUBLICAN

WEDNESDAY APRIL 26, 1843.

Henry Eisenbise,
EDITOR AND PUBLISHER.

FOR PRESIDENT,
Gen. LEWIS CASS.
[Subject to the decision of a National Convention.]

FOR GOVERNOR,
Henry A. Muhlenberg.
(Of Berks County.)

The Legislature

Adjourned on Tuesday night, the 18th inst., at 12 o'clock. The session was indeed a stormy one, owing doubtless to the multitude of conflicting interests and measures which were to be disposed of. The amount of business transacted is said by the Harrisburg papers to have exceeded that of any preceding legislature. The acts and resolutions passed will number about two hundred. Considerable reform has been effected, but much more might have been accomplished had there been a corresponding effort on the part of all the members to carry out the wishes of the people. Among the more important bills passed was the General Appropriation Bill, which was adopted on Tuesday night of the adjournment. The appropriations are not so large as those which have been made for the same purposes for the last year. The law providing for the election of Canal Commissioners by the people, in October next became a law without the signature of Governor Porter. The Reform Bill also became a law by limitation.

We have to regret that more harmony and good feeling, so essential to the well being and success of the principles of the democratic party, did not prevail amongst our friends in their councils. However, taking every thing into consideration, it does not much surprise us, for it is almost impossible to get so large a body of men together, representing so many different interests, coming from different sections of the State without conflicting with one another in some respect. We will not be so uncharitable as to think they were not actuated by pure motives, but rather a desire to legislate for the good of their individual constituents.

Murder.

In the hurry incident to getting our paper to press last week, we entirely forgot to notice one of the most atrocious and revolting murders within our recollection, which was committed upon the persons of an old gentleman aged 72, and his wife aged 69, named Parthemore, in the vicinity of Harrisburg. It appears that they resided about three miles from Harrisburg, their family consisted of three persons, Mr. P., his wife, and only son, who on the morning of the 14th instant, left home for the purpose of taking some some marketing to Harrisburg. The young man upon his return home found his aged parents weltering in their blood, and on the sight of so much misery he fell insensible to the floor. Upon recovering, he raised the head of his father, and wiping the blood from his face found it beaten and bruised in a most horrible manner.

Suspicion rested first upon two Irishmen who had been seen in the neighborhood in the morning, who were arrested in Cumberland county, examined and one of them was discharged and the other retained for further hearing. Two germans who had been seen in the vicinity the day previous, were also suspected, but as yet no clue has been found to them. On Saturday morning the 15th, the son was arrested. He appeared very much afflicted and expressed a perfect willingness to undergo an examination, and offered every satisfaction, but upon inquiry of the neighbors, he was immediately discharged.—The affair has created an extraordinary excitement The Telegraph concludes an article on this tragedy by saying —"As yet the deed is veiled in darkness. The murderers are not known. A reward of $500 is offered, as it will be seen by an advertisement in another column, for the apprehension of the murderer or murderers; snd it will be the most extraordinary and alarming if such deeds can be committed in a thickly populated country like this, and the perpetrators escape."

☞ Our Representative, Mr. Thomas J. Postlethwaite, has returned to his home His course in the Legislature must and will receive the approbation of his constituents. We hail his return with "well done good and faithful servant."

Texas.

The latest and most important news from the 'Star Republic' is that of the arrival of Judge Robison, in the steamship New York, at New Orleans on the 3d instant Judge Robison was among those who were captured under Gen. Woll at San Antonio, and released by the Mexican government for the purpose of bearing the subjoined proposals of the Mexican President to the government of Texas. We sincerely hope that something may be effected which will restore permanently the peace of the Texans, and enable them to pursue their avocations without being harassed and molested as they have been by a mercenary and reckles horde of adventurers, such as are the Mexicans. They have borne themselves thus far gallantly in the unequal conflict in which they have been engaged. When we reflect that they have been contending for the same principles, and the same glorious object, for which our fathers fought in the revolution, we cannot but hope their efforts will beultimately crowned with success—and their unflinching devotion amid all the difficulties and dangers by which they have been surrounded, and patriotism in the holy cause of Liberty be rewarded by an honorable peace.

GALVESTON. March 27, 1843.

To the Editor of the Times.

SIR: A few hours since, I arrived here from Vera Cruz, via New Orleans, and will leave immediately for Washington, to lay before his Excellency, the President, 'the basis' upon which the war between Mexico and Texas may probably be terminated, which basis or propositions emanate from, and bear the signature of Gen. Santa Anna, President of Mexico.

1st. It is proposed that Texas should ackrowledge the sovereignty of Mexico.

3d. A general act of amnesty to be passed for past acts in Texas.

3d. Texas to form an independent department of Mexico.

4th. Texas to be represented in the General Congress.

5th. Texas to institute, or originate all local laws, rules and regulations.

6th, No Mexican troops under any pretext whatever to be stationed in Texas.

This is the principle basis of a projected treaty, and other important points, to be submitted to the President and the people."

Good News.

It is confidently reported that the "Millenium Man" has made, inadvertently, a slight mistake as to the exact period of the termination of the world, which places that dread event about a thousand years hence. We congratulate the inhabitants of this sublunar sphere upon the timely discovery of this error! What a terrible time we should have had if this matter had not been rectified!

The following appointments were made for this district at the Baltimore Conference last month,

HUNTINGDON DISTRICT.

Jefferson's Birthday.

The Centennial anniversary of the birthday of the great apostle of Democracy, Thomas Jefferson, was celebrated in Philadelphia on Thursday afternoon, April 13th. Col. James Page presided, assisted by several Vice Presidents;—the Declaration of American Independence was read by Hon. C. J. Ingersoll, prefaced by some appropriate remarks respecting the prominent men of both parties at the time. An Oration was delivered by Hon. George M. Dallas, written in his usual able and interesting manner. We regret that its length will prevent its insertion in our paper; we may give some extracts from it again. Invitations were extended to a large number of distinguished democrats in this and other States, answers were received and read from Messrs. Buchanan, Cass, Van Buren, Muhlenburg and others. We give below the replies of Cass, Buchanan and Muhlenburg, together with a few of the numerous sentiments read as indicative of the feeling which prevails in that section of the State towards these champions of Democracy.

Detroit, April 8, 1843.

Gentlemen:—Your letter of the 31st ultimo, inviting me to attend the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, at Philadelphia on the 13th inst. reached me to-day, and I fear there is not time for you to receive my answer before that interesting testimonial of public gratitude will have passed away. I regret it, because I would not seem to neglect so complimentary an invitation from a body of my fellow-citizens entitled to such high consideration; and still more, because I would not fail to pay my tribute of gratitude to the memory of as true a patriot as ever spent his life in the cause of his country. I am prevented by the time and by distance from personal attendance, but I shall be with you in heart, and shall join you in all your sentiments of respect for the services, and of attachment to the principles of the great expounder of our constitution, and of one of the founders of the true school of freedom. Well will it be for us, if the doctrines he taught and practically enforced, shall hereafter constitute maxims for the administration of our government.

With great respect, I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

LEWIS CASS.

To the Committee, &c.

By the Committee. Gen. Lewis Cass: The soldier, the diplomatist and the statesman. His correspondence with Webster proves his knowledge of the American character, and his ability to defend it.

Lancaster, April 4, 1843.

Gentlemen:—I have been honored by the receipt of your kind invitation to be present at the "public festival," to be given on the 13th instant by the Democrats of the city and county of Philadelphia, for the purpose of celebrating "the Centennial anniversary of the Birth of Thomas Jefferson." It would be a source of high gratification to me if I could be with you on that interesting occasion; and I have, therefore, to regret that it will not be in my power, consistently with previous engagements to enjoy this privilege.

Yours, very respectfully,

JAMES BUCHANAN.

To George Pitt, J. H. Hutchison, Andrew Miller, R. M. Kerrison, B. H. Brewster, John Kames and William Seybert, Esq'rs, Committee, &c

By the Committee. James Buchanan: Thrice elected by the democratic legislatures to the highest station in their gift; he has ably, faithfully and honestly carried out their wishes in the national councils. Greater honors await him.

Reading, April 6, 1843.

Gentlemen:—I have been honored and much gratified by your polite invitation to join the democrats of the city and county of Philadelphia in celebrating the centennial anniversary of Thomas Jefferson on the 13th inst.

Absence from home, and a rather serious indisposition since my return has prevented an earlier reply. I had indeed hoped to have been so far recovered before now, and to have had an opportunity of so arranging business as to be enabled to accept of your kind invitation. I have been disappointed in both, and must therefore reluctantly beg you to excuse my non-attendance at a festival at which every sincere republican and admirer of our excellent free institutions can so heartily join in celebrating.

Permit me, in tendering you my grateful acknowledgements for your remembrance on this occasion, to offer for your acceptance the following sentiment.

Thomas Jefferson: Pre-eminent among the benefactors of his country and of the world. His memory must forever live in the hearts of all who desire the freedom and welfare of the human family. The pure republican principles he planted, nurtured and guarded have already borne glorious fruits, and must continue to do so for countless ages to come, not only in his own native land, but wherever virtue and intelligence shall prepare a proper soil.

I am, gentlemen, with great regard, your friend, and obedient servant.

HENRY A. MUHLENBURG.

To the Committee.

By the Committee.—Henry A. Muhlenburg: The pride of "Old Berks."—We hail him as our next Governor.

Insurrection of Negroes at Havana.

A slip from the Charleston Mercury, dated April 8th, contains a letter of the 1st from Havana, of which the following is an extract:

"An insurrection of the negroes employed on the Cardenas Railroad, took place a few days ago. They marched into three sugar estates, and after setting fire to the houses, increased their numbers to over one thousand; but were speedily put down by the whites in the neighborhood, aided by a company of regular troops. The last accounts say, that no more difficulty was apprehended. So active were the whites, that when the military arrived, they found over forty negroes killed, and the rest surrounded by the whites, and not daring to advance."

Atrocious Murder in Baltimore County.

We have just been informed of a most shocking murder, recently perpetrated on the body of Mrs. Malinda Horn, wife of Adam Horn, residing about 22 miles from Baltimore, on the Hanover turnpike road, near the Blue Bell tavern. The unfortunate victim, it appears, had mysteriously disappeared from her home about four weeks since, and no intelligence could be had of her. The anxiety and suspicion of the neighbors becoming excited, they determined to institute search for her, and yesterday afternoon succeeded in finding the body enveloped in a coffee bag, in a ditch of a field fronting the house, where it had been thrown. The legs and arms had been severed from it, and were subsequently found wrapped up in a coarse cloth, in the upper part of the back building of the house in which the husband resided. The head had been entirely cut off, and has not yet been discovered. The deceased was about eighteen years of age, and had been married some twelve or fifteen months. Her delicate situation at the time of the terrible event, was such as to render the murder a double one. An inquest was held over the body by Justice Bushy, and a verdict rendered of death by the hands of some one unknown to the jury. Circumstances, we are informed, tended strongly to fasten suspicion upon the husband. He is said to have so ill-treated his wife as to cause her to leave him some time last fall, but she again returned and was subject to frequent misusage on subsequent occasions. Apprehending, possibly, that the body might be discovered, he left his home yesterday morning and was last seen about five miles from Baltimore, on his way to the city, carrying a small bundle. The neighbors are now in pursuit of him. He is about 45 years of age, 5 feet 6 inches high, somewhat pockmarked, is a tailor by trade, and was, when he left, dressed in a blue frock coat, grey pantaloons and a black hat. —He had pursued his trade and kept, in addition, a small grocery store. We are requested to say that a suitable reward will be given for his apprehension.—[Baltimore Patriot.

Foul and Infamous Seduction.

Scarcely a day passes, (says the New-York True Sun,) in which we do not hear of some awful outrage of the Divine and human law. Seduction, murder, and other crimes stalk through the land, and each new tale seems more dreadful than the last.

A few months since, a fiend in human form, and called a merchant, in Pearl street, became acquainted with a young lady of about eighteen years of age, in Brooklyn, and was afterwards received as her avowed suitor. She was an only child. Her mother dead. The villain ruined her; and when her father discovered her situation, he went to the young man, and with tears besought him to make the only possible reparation—to marry the girl; offering him at the same time ten thousand dollars to put him into business. The young scoundrel refused to have any thing more to do with his victim, and told the broken-hearted old man "that he was not to be hired to marry a prostitute." The old gentleman, being too feeble to insist upon justice, or take revenge, the seducer escaped punishment, and still moves among men.

The old gentleman is worth property to the amount of fifty thousand dollars, and has left his home with his daughter, and gone, his friends know not whither.

Henry A. Muhlenberg and the "Spirit of the Times"

We notice with feelings of regret, as well as unqualified disapprobation, a communication published in a recent number of the Philadelphia Times, in which Mr. Muhlenberg is represented as being an improper or dangerous candidate for the democratic party of Pennsylvania to concentrate upon as the next gubernatorial candidate. That paper alludes to the unfortunate division of the democratic party in 1835.—This is in our opinion all wrong, and calculated to introduce the worst feelings among democrats. We do not beleive there is a purer man, or a better democrat, than Henry A. Muhlenberg, and reference to the unhappy conflict of 1835 will never be made by any editor who has the future prosperity of the great republican party at heart. We make no pledge here for that gentleman, nor do we indicate him as our preference; but we do say, he will do honor to any station in the gift of the people of this commonwealth, and if nominated as the next democratic candidate for Governor, he will CONCENTRATE the entire democratic party. As faithful public sentinels, we will not suffer any of our distinguished men to be misrepresented, or made the victims of a few ambitious and designing men, either in the east or west.—[Keystone.

State Printer.

This question, which has so long occupied the attention of the Legislature, has at length been consummated. The election took place this day in the House of Representatives; and after four successive ballottings, we have the proud satisfaction to announce to our democratic friends, that the senior Editor of the Keystone was triumphantly elected to the high and honorable post of State Printer. John B. Bratton was the nominee of the caucus; but for particular reasons his name was withdrawn in convention, and the name of the senior Editor of the Keystone substituted, he being a partner of Mr. Bratton—so that this election is but carrying out the caucus nomination under another name. To those friends who have given us their support on this important occasion, we pledge ourselves, instead of relaxing our exertions in the great and glorious cause of Democracy, to redouble them. It shall henceforth be our constant study, by day and night, in sunshine and storm, through "good and evil report," to vindicate and uphold the TIME HONORED USAGES of the Democratic party.

A WORD TO THE SEDENTARY.—This term includes all those who pass their time within doors, embracing clerks and students the majority of mechanics and professional men with almost the entire female population of all cities.

These persons cannot possibly enjoy health without using a vegetable purgative medicine of sufficient power to overcome that languor of the circulation, and inactivity of the stomach and bowels, which must necessarily result from the want of exercise.

Brandreth's Vegetable Universal Pills being a mild cathartic and always acting harmoniously with the system, will be found singularly effective in these cases; because they cleanse the blood from all impurities, removes every cause of pain or weakness, and restores the body to renewed health and vigor.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS.
ACRIMONIOUS HUMORS.
THE CAUSE AND ONLY CAUSE OF ALL PAIN AND DISTRESS IN THE BODY.

☞ PAIN is the warning given by the nerves that there are acrimonious humors in the body. No man had ever an affection of the lungs but it arose from ACRIMONIOUS HUMORS having settled there.—No man had ever pain in the head or an affection of the heart, but it was produced by the presence upon those parts of ACRIMONIOUS HUMORS. So with Rheumatism, it is the acrimonious humors which have settled upon the membrane of the muscles. So with dysentary, the acrimonious humors have settled upon the mucus membrane of the bowels, aggravated in most cases by the retention of HARD FECAL matters in those important organs. There never was in any part of the body (unless it was produced by an accident) that was not occasioned by the presence of

PAIN OR DISTRESS

ACRID HUMORS.

It is these humors which have to be expelled, and by so doing the

PAIN OR DISTRESS

is sure to be removed. This is as certain as that

ONE IS LESS THAN TWO.

To do this with certainty, the

BRANDRETH PILLS

must be used. They are as innocent as bread, yet all-powerful as a remover of the cause of sickness—may be taken at any time of the day or night, without alteration in diet or fear of cold. Sold by the following AGENTS.

JOHN A. STERRET, Lewistown.
WM. HARDY, Waynesburg.
STROUSE & NORTH, Newton Hamilton.
CHAS. A. THOMPSON, Mexico.
WM. STEWART, Huntingdon.
JNO. M. HALE, Bellefonte.

He returns his sincere thanks to the citizens of Lewistown and the public generally for their patronage heretofore, so liberally bestowed on him. They may rest assured that all the above mentioned articles will be manufactured at the shortest notice, and to please all.

ZACKARIAH ORNER.

Lewistown, Feb. 20, 1843.—6mo

P. S. The public are respectfully invited to call and see and judge for themselves. All kinds of lumber or produce will be taken in exchange for chairs.

WANTED. Also one more steady boy, and will be taken if application be made soon.

Z. O.

FOR THE PUBLIC.

THIS is to certify that we have tried one of the Houghton Patent Cooking Stoves made by A. Blymyer & CO., in Lewistown and find it to be a very poor article, not worth having—and since we have tried a Hathaway Cooking Stove made by A. Long, Lewistown and find it a very complete article in every respect.

For bakeing we think it cannot be excelled, and all other purposes as good as can be— and would recommend all persons wishing to get a Cook Stove for to try one of the HATHAWAY and after trying it honestly we think they would not part with it.

TUSCARORA ACADEMY.

JUNIATA COUNTY, PA.

THE summer session will commence on the 17th of April. Every thing requisite to qualify pupils for entering College, or for business, is here taught in the best manner. Its healthful location, its seclusion from the scenes of temptation and vice incident to towns; the very low rate of expenses, and the untiring exertions to make this institution a school of Bible morals, as well as of intellectual training, have won for it a high degree of celebrity. Mr. David Wilson A. M. returns to conduct the Classical and Mathematical departments. His high qualifications as a Scholar and Teacher, are extensively known and appreciated. He will be aided in the English department by a competent assistant. Pupils from a distance are required to board in the Academy, unless by special permission. The hours of study, as well as of school, are conducted under the superintendance of one of the teachers: and the entire time is definitely regulated by judicious rules.

A vacation of four weeks occurs in July; also, one in April and October, of eight days each.

TERMS.

TEMPERANCE HOUSE,

And Boot & Shoe Manufactory.

HENRY Butler, late of Newton Hamilton, takes this method of making it known to his friends and the public generally, that he has removed from the above place, and located himself at WHITE HALL, on the great road leading to Huntingdon, through the centre of the rich and beautiful Kishacoquillas Valley, where he has opened a TEMPERANCE HOUSE, for the accommodation of strangers and travellers, and is prepared to do justice to all who will favor him with their custom, on the temperance principle.

His table shall not be surpassed by any in the country, being determined to supply it with all the relishments the market and country can produce; adding to it good strong coffee or tea, as to beverage, COLD WATER, of the purest in the valley.

His stables are good, and well filled with feed of all kinds, and attended with careful ostlers. In short nothing on the part of the landlord shall be spared to render his customers agreeable, and to please all shall be his aim.

In place of the critter what makes men noisy very often, the noise of the shoe-hammer will be heard about the premises, wishing to be understood by this, that he will carry on the shoe making business in all its various branches,, and shoes and boots will be made to order upon the shortest notice and on the most reasonable terms.—He begs leave to solicit the public's patronage also in this line or branch of his business.

A NEW ENTERPRISE.

By the former Editor of the Saturday Evening Post and Saturday Courier.

Comprising the fruits of twenty years experience in the Newspaper business; the aid of the most distinguished newspaper writers of the day; a valuable Foreign Correspondence; with troops of Literary friends, and the determination to publish a Newspaper for all classes, which

SHALL NOT BE SURPASSED.

Philadelphia Saturday Museum.

Of Knowledge, News, and Amusement

A Family Newspaper, neutral in politics—opposed to quackery, and devoted to the Arts, Education, Morals, Health and Amusement.

The Tales, Sketchs, Narratives, Biographies, Essays, and Poems, shall be of the first order—the best productions of the best writers of the day. Also, articles on Hystory, Astronomy, Chemistry, and all the Arts and Sciences, with a liberal portion of light reading, anecdotes, wit and humour, making a varied, rich, and mirth-inspiring Olio.

LIFE ON THE OCEAN.—Furnishing narratives of sterling adventures at sea, showing the courage and heroism of the bold Mariner, as

He springs from his hammock and flies to the deck,
Where amazement confronts him with images dire,
Wild winds and mad waves drive the vessel a wreck,
The masts fly in splinters—the shrouds are on fire.

Foreign and Domestic News, Congressional Proceedings, and a general view of all matters of interest or importance, will appear.

PICTORIAL EMBELLISHMENTS, comprising maps, landscapes, architecture, portraits of distinguished personages, of both sexes. In these, as well as in neatness, of typography the Museum shall not be surpassed.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.—Arrangements have been completed for securing a regular Foreign Correspondence more extensive and complete than has ever rendered the columns of an American Newspaper.

COMMERCIAL.—The state of business, of stocks, prices of grain, flour, and descriptions of country produce, merchandize, &c., will be given from sales in Philadelphia, Baltimore, New York, Boston, &c.

Select and Original Gems From the best productions of the best Writers of the day.

TO AGENTS.—Terms of commission.

Any individual who may be disposed to procure the names of his friends, and remit the funds, will be entitled to the commissions which are at present, and will continue to be, until further notice, more liberal by far, than have yet been offered by any Newspaper of character or merit.

TERMS.—The Philadelphia Saturday Museum is published every week at $2 per annum, as usual, in advance, or $3 at the end of the year.

☞ For $20, in current funds, 16 copies will be forwarded, securely packed, to any part of the United States. 3 copies for $5. All orders and communications to be addressed, free of postage, to Legislative Keystone.

TWO DOLLARS FOR THE SESSION.

The Keystone will as usual, be published twice a week during the session of the Legislature; and we shall spare neither pains nor expense in giving full and accurate reports of the proceedings of the two Houses, together with sketches of the debates on all public and important questions; we hope to receive a liberal support from the reading public. The coming session of our Legislature will be one of more than common interest, and persons desirous of obtaining early and correct information from the seat of Government will find it to their advantage to take the Keystone. To lawyers, judges, Justices of the Peace and public officers generally, it will be invaluable, as all the laws of a public and general nature are published in it immediately after their passage. and fully three months before they will be promulgated in any other manner. We shall also have an able correspondent at Washington city, who will keep the readers of our paper apprised of all that is doing at the seat of the National Government.

Terms.

The terms of the Keystone are as follows.

For the whole year, $3 00

For the session only, (twice a week) 2 00

Any person sending us five subscribers for the session, accompanied by ten dollars, shall receive a copy gratis for his trouble. All payments may be transmitted by mail, and all Postmasters are permitted to frank letters containing money for newspaper subscriptions.

DR. SWAYNES' COMPOUND SYRUP OF Prunus Virginiana or Wild cherry,

For Coughs, Colds, Asthmas, Spitting Blood, Soreness of Throat, Whooping Cough, and all diseases indicative of CONSUMPTION.

Delays are Dangerous.—So it is with those who neglect their Colds and Coug At first you complain of having a Cold which is neglected; after which a soreness is experienced in the Bronchia, with a Hacking Cough, and finally the disease settles upon the lungs, which the patient will soon perceive by a wasting away of the body, attended with hectic fevers and spitting up of florid blood and matter from ulcers on the lungs; a pain and weight is also experienced at the affected part of the ungs; the functions of the animal economy grow languid; the body becomes dry the eyes sink deep within their cavities; at length the patient pays the debt of nature, when he is flattering himself with the hopes of a speedy recovery. To obviate all those distressing symptoms "Spare no Time" in procuring the above Invaluable Medicine at the very commencement of your Colds and Coughs whereby your health may be secured and time and money saved.

DR. MERRICK'S Vermifuge.

Among the numerous articles offered to the public as remedies for worms, none have proved so pre-eminently successful as MERRICK'S VERMIFUGE. This medicine is not only a safe and positive cure for the worms, but so pleasant to the taste, that it may be given to the most delicate children without inconveniance. For want of timely relief, thousands of children are yearly carried to an untimely grave by these pests to juvenile health nd happiness. The unexampled popularity, the increased demand, and the spontaneous applause and testimoniouials of hundreds that have used this medicine, prove it one of the most useful compounds of the present day. Price 37½ cents, per Cotle.

The Pocahontas or Indian Vegetable Pills.

As a mild and gentle purgative cleansing the bowels from all impurities, purifying the blood, restoring the loss of appetite, removing headache, flatulency, habitual costiveness, &c, these Pills have not an equal in the catalogue of Medicines. They are an infallible remedy for that class of diseases denominated, Bilious—Speedily correcting themorbid state of the liver and stomach, and restoring them to healthy action; bilious fever, jaundice, bilious cholic, ague and fever, bilious vomiting, dyspepsia: &c, are speedily cured by their use. Price 25 cents per Box.

☞Country Merchants and Druggests would promote their interests by procuring a supply of the above articles.

HATHAWAY'S PATENT, HOT-AIR COOKING STOVE

The subscriber takes this method to inform the public, that he still continues to manufacture, and keeps constantly on hand, these Hathaway Cooking stoves of various sizes and prices. This stove, wherever used, does its own talking, in a practical manner, and needs not any exaggerated puff to recommend it to a discriminating public. There has been so much imposition practised, heretofore, in the sale of the article of cooking stoves, than the subscriber is resolved to let all who wish, test the utility of the HATHAWAY STOVE in his own kitchen, under his own supervision. Hundreds of certificates from those who have given the stove a fair and hon st trial, could be subjoined, but it is not deemed necessary; but merely the adoption of the maxim at the head of this bill.

TO THE WHOLE WORLD.

It is admited by all who have used them (and who has not?) that

Dr. Peter's Vegitable Antibilious Pills.

Are the most unrivalled remedy ever discovered by the ingenuity of man. They are a sovereign cure for the following complaints: Yellow and bilious Fevers Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Croup, Liver complaint, Sick headache. Jaundice, Asthma, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Enlargement of the Spleen. Piles, Cholic, Female Obstructions, Heart burn, Furred tongue, Nausea, Distentions of the stomach and bowels, Incipient Diarrhea, Flatulence, Habitual Costiveness, Loss of Appetite, blotched or sallow complexion, and in all cases of torpor of the bowels, where a cathartic or Apperient is needed.

They are exceedingly mild in their operation, producing neither Nausea, Griping nor Debility. They are extensively used and commended by practicing Physicians, in all parts of the Union, from whom any quantity of certificates of their value can be obtained.

Dr. J G Smith of Woodstock, Va. says—'They are a better pill than I can make.' He recommends them to all.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD

We ask the attention of every man woman and child in the United States, to what will prove to be the most Valuable discovery ever made, a discovery that only requires to be known to be appreciated.

Dr. Sherman's Medicated Lozenges,

Are the best medicine in the world. Quere, Why Simply because they are the most efficacious, the cheepest and the pleasantest to take. What are they? They are a combination of the most approved remedies in the whole medical kingdom, and so prepared in double refined sugar as to make them as pleasant to the taste as the best cream candy, children will eat them with avidity, besides they are more convenient than any other medicine, they are put up in a single form of a Lozenge so that a few may be put in the pocket and eaten at pleasure. There has never been a single instance in which they have failed to give perfect satisfaction. The Medical Faculty warmly approve of them.

SHERMAN'S COUGH LOZENGES

Are the safest and most sure and effectual remedy for colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough. Asthma, tightness of the Lungs or Chest, &c. &c.

Mr John Starkey, foot of Governeur street, cured of cough of eighteen months standing, supposed to be a settled consumption, by these Lozenges, when the physicians could do nothing for him.

SHERMAN'S WORM LOZENGES

Proved in more than 40,000 cases to be infallible, the only certain worm destroying medicine ever discovry

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.—Pain in the joints or limbs offensive breath, picking at the nose, grinding of the teeth during sleep, and at times a paleness about the lips with flushed cheeks, bleeding at the nose, a knawing sensation at the stomach, flashes of heat over the surface of the body slight chills or shiverings, headache drowsiness vertigo torpor, disturbed dreams sudden starting in sleep with fright and screaming sometimes a troublesome cough feverishness thirst palid hue fits bad taste in the mouth difficult breathing pain in the stomach or bowels, fatigue nausea, squeamishness voracious appetite leanness, bloated throat, itching of the anus toward night a frequent desire to pass something from the bowels and sometimes discharges of slime and mucus.

Dr Gelen Hunter, 108 Sixth Avenue, knew a child that was cured of fits by these Lozenges, after three years suffering, and when nothing else would give the least relief. A boy on board of one of the Havre packets was cured of fits by only one dose of them

SHERMAN'S CAMPHOR, OR HEADACHE LOZENGES.

Give immediate relief in nervous sick headache, palpitation of the heart, lowness of spirits despondency, inflammatory or putrid sore throat, bowel or summer complaint fainting oppression or a sense of sinking of the chest cholic spastus cramps of the stomach or bowels hysterical affections and all nervous diseases drowsiness through the day and wakefulness at night, cholera or cholera morbus' diarrhœa lassitude or a sense of fatigue. Persons travelling or attending large parties will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dissipation they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free giving.

John M Moore Esq., Editor of the Brother Jonathan was cured of a severe headache in six minutes by three of the Camphor Lozenges—he was prejudiced against them.

Hall's Patent Horse Power Thrashing Machine.

The trouble and vexation of the various sweep Machines are now obviated by the invaluable Machine, patented by Mr. Hall Where Hall's Machine is known and used it is said the Sweep Machine is thrown altogether aside. It is so constructed that it cannot wear out for a number of years, and will not require more than a dollar a year to keep it in repair. It requires but two horses to thrash one hundred and fifty bushels of wheat in eight hours, taking up no more room on the barn floor than a double stall, or place for two horses. The great advantages of Hall's Machine, over every Swee Machine, are

1st. It will not get out of repair, and cannot be broken be fair usage.

2nd. It is compact—takes so little room that it can be set in any Barn, under cover, where thrashing may be done in wet or stormy weather.

3rd. Two Horses are all that is required to operate it—thus saving the trouble and expense of employing more horses, as well as the expense of a driver, none being necessary. It is lighter work for two horses on this machine than for four on any sweep machine.

4th It can be put in operation in 15 minutes after arriving on the ground, no digging or staking being necessary.

5th. It is warranted to thrash as much grain, with two horses as can be thrashed on any sweep machine with four.

6th. It can be used for sawing wood—one horse will drive a circular saw, sufficient to cut twenty cords of wood in a day and two horses would be sufficient to grind corn in the ear. One horse being ample to drive two common Turner's lathes. It could do all the bark grinding, and pumping with from one to two horses necessary for country Tanneries generally. Inshort it can be put to a great many uses, and will be found one of the most valuable inventions of this class, which has been introduced for many years.

Farmers and others are invited to call and see the machine in operation, at the barn o Joseph Milliken, near Lewistown.

The undersigned are prepared to build Hall's Machine complete, at reasonable price—warranted. They have purchasee the Patent right for the counties of Mifflid Centre, Union, and Juniata.

Natural Principles.

It is written in the Book of Nature and common sense, that the natural vegetable production of every country are, if properly aped, amply sufficient for the cure of every malady incident in that clime.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills are founded upon the principle, that the human body is subject to but viz: corrupt humors, which when confined to the circulation, give rise to those disordered motions of the blood called fevers; but when lodged in various parts of the body, are the cause not only of every ache or pain we suffer but of every malady incident to man.

It should be remembered that Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills are composed of roots and herbs, which grow spontaneously on our own soil, and consequently are so admirably adapted to our constitutions that, while they cannot possibly injure even the most delicate a perseverence in their use, according to directions, is absolutely certain to drive disease of every name from the body.

When we wish to restore a swamp or moss rass to fertility do we not drain it of the superabundant water? In like manner, if we would restore the body to health, we must cleanee it from impurity.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, will be be found peculiarly adapted to carrying out this grand purifying, because they expel all corrupt humors in an easy and natural manner and while they every day give ease and pleasure, the constitution is restored to such a state of health and vigor, that disease wil find no abiding place in the body.

☞BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS

As the great popularity of Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, has raised up a host of counterfeiters the public are cautioned against imposters, who are travelling about the country selling to the unsuspecting storekeeper a spurious article for the above celebrated Pills.

CERTIFICATE OF AGENCY,

Of which the following is a copy:

This is to certify that the withia named —— is a regular and duly appointed —— Agent for the sale of Wrights Indian Vegetable Pills, in the town of ——, State of ——, and this certificate, which is signed by Wm Wright Vice President of the North American College of Health, must be countesigned by the acting Clerk or Agent, from whom said certificate is received.

This certificate of agency will be renewed every twelve months, therefore if any alteration should be made in the date, do not purchase.

The public are further informed that all who receive the above certificate, are also required to sign the following.

☞PLEDGE.

This is to certify, that the subscriber, by certificate bearing even date herewith, signed with the proper handwriting of William Wright, Vice President of the North American College of Health, —— been appointed —— Agent for the sale of

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS.

Or, Indian Purgative,

in the town of ——, and State of ——, to hold and continue in said Agency during the pleasure of said Wm Wright, and no longer, any thing contained in the said certificate signed by the said Wm Wright, to the contrary thereof notwithstanding. In consideration whereof, I hereby covenant and agree to and with the said Wm Wright that I will not sell, or expose for sale, any medicine bearing the above or a similar name, during my said Agency, other than that which I receive from his authorized Agent or Agents, under the penalty of five hundred dollars to be by me paid to him, as liquidated damages. Witness —— hand and seal, the —— day of —— one thousand eight hundred and forty ——

Thus it will be seen that the friends of the genuing medicine may be perfectly free from any apprehension of fraud, as all agents, who are provided wih a certificate of Agency, have invariably signed the pledge not to sell any Indian vegetable Pill except those received from the above named Wm Wright, or his authorized agents.

Country Agents and others; will be on their guard against travelling imposters, and remember that all authorized travelling agents are also provided with a certificate of Agency as above described, and that Pills offered for sale, by those who cannot show a certificate of Agency are sure to be counterfeit.
